Tracking Error

Each of the Funds listed in the table employs a “passive” investment strategy designed to replicate the performance of its benchmark index. Some of the Funds attempt to fully replicate the index by holding all of the component securities, in approximately the same proportion as their weighting in the index. Other Funds instead use an index sampling process, holding a representative sample of securities which approximates the full index in terms of key risk factors and other characteristics.

Tracking error measures the volatility of the return difference between each Fund and its relevant index. It is calculated as the standard deviation of the tracking difference between the Fund and the index (gross of fees for the trailing 36-month period, or since the Fund’s inception if it does not have 36 months of performance history. Realised tracking error may vary from the anticipated tracking error, depending on a range of circumstances. These include transaction costs and withholding tax differences. The anticipated tracking error and realised tracking error are not expected to vary significantly under normal circumstances.

The Realised Tracking Error excludes adjustments for swing pricing.

For the period ended 31 December 2024, the following tracking error disclosed for each Fund is in the same currency as the Fund’s base currency:

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks and bonds finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, Vanguard LifeStrategy 20% Equity UCITS ETF returned 3.42% for both share classes for the six-month period, reflecting its allocations to global stocks and bonds.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks and bonds finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, Vanguard LifeStrategy 40% Equity UCITS ETF returned 4.85% for both share classes for the six-month period, reflecting its allocations to global stocks and bonds.

- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned -0.44% for the six months.
- Japan, which represents more than half the index, added the most to performance. Other contributors included Singapore, Hong Kong and Australia. Among other markets with significant weightings, only South Korea lost ground.
- From a sector perspective, financials – which make up more than 20% of the index – contributed the most to returns. Several other sectors, including consumer discretionary, industrials and consumer staples, also gained ground. The largest detractors were telecommunications and technology stocks.

Vanguard ESG Developed Europe All Cap UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard ESG Developed Europe All Cap UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Developed Europe All Cap Choice Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index composed of large-, mid- and small-cap stocks of companies located in developed markets in Europe.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, several Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned -0.42% for the six months.
- Among markets, the United Kingdom and Germany – which make up more than a third of the index – contributed the most to performance. Among other markets with significant weightings, Denmark and the Netherlands detracted the most.
- From an industry sector perspective, financial stocks – which constitute close to a quarter of the index – were the greatest contributor. Telecommunications and industrial stocks contributed to a lesser extent. Seven of 11 sectors posted negative returns. Health care and technology stocks detracted the most.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard ESG Emerging Markets All Cap UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard ESG Emerging Markets All Cap UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Emerging All Cap Choice Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index composed of large-, mid- and small-cap stocks of companies located in emerging markets around the world.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 5.19% for the six-month period.
- Taiwan, China and India, the markets with the largest weightings, contributed the most to the benchmark's performance. Mexico, Brazil and Turkey were the largest detractors.
- Seven of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive returns. Financials, technology and consumer discretionary added the most to returns. Basic materials, consumer staples and utilities detracted the most.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard ESG Global All Cap UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard ESG Global All Cap UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Global All Cap Choice Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index composed of large-, mid- and small-cap stocks of companies located in markets around the world.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 6.10% for the six-month period.
- The United States, which represents more than 60% of the index, added the most to the benchmark's performance. China, Japan, Canada, Taiwan, the UK, India, Germany and Australia also contributed. France, Korea, the Netherlands and Switzerland were the biggest detractors among markets with larger weightings.
- Six of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive returns. Consumer discretionary, financials and technology added most to returns. Health care, basic materials and consumer staples detracted most.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard ESG North America All Cap UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard ESG North America All Cap UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE North America All Cap Choice Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index composed of large-, mid- and small-cap stocks of companies located in the United States and Canada.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period up 5.67%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index in US dollars. By region, US stocks outperformed, with the prospect of corporate tax cuts and deregulation under the next administration buoying market sentiment towards year-end.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 8.97% for the six-month period. US stocks, which make up almost all of the index, drove returns.
- Eight of the index's 11 industry sectors produced positive returns. Technology, consumer discretionary and financials contributed most to returns. Health care was the biggest detractor.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE 100 UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE 100 UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE 100 Index, a widely recognised benchmark of the UK market's most highly capitalised blue-chip companies.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index, which represents the UK market's largest companies, returned 1.64% for the six-month period.
- Seven of the benchmark's 11 industry sectors posted positive results. Financials and consumer staples contributed most to returns. Energy, health care and basic materials detracted most.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in British pounds.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE 250 UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE 250 UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE 250 Index, a widely recognised benchmark of mid-capitalised companies of the United Kingdom.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 3.13% for the six months.
- While the index, which represents mid-capitalisation companies in the UK market, ended in positive territory as a whole, six of its 11 industry sectors posted negative returns. Real estate and energy were the biggest detractors, while financials and consumer discretionary contributed most to returns.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in British pounds.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE All-World UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE All-World UCITS ETF seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the FTSE All-World Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index of common stocks of large- and mid-capitalisation companies in developed and emerging markets.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 5.56% for the six-month period.
- The United States, which represents more than 60% of the index, added the most to the benchmark's performance. Among other markets with larger weightings, China, Canada, Japan and the UK added to performance; India, France and Switzerland detracted.
- Eight of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive returns. Consumer discretionary, financials and technology added the most to returns. Health care, basic materials and energy detracted.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE All-World High Dividend Yield UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE All-World High Dividend Yield UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE All-World High Dividend Yield Index, a free-float-adjusted market capitalisation-weighted index of common stocks of companies, excluding real estate trusts, in developed and emerging markets that pay dividends that are generally higher than average.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 3.22% for the six-month period.
- Seven of the index's 11 industry sectors posted gains. Financials, the largest sector (roughly 27% of the weighting), also had the highest gain, which accounted for most of the benchmark's overall return.
- There was greater disparity in returns by country, with gains and losses in double digits in some cases. While several countries had much higher returns than the US, US stocks contributed most to the benchmark's overall return because of their weighting – they accounted for more than 43% of the assets and returned roughly 7%.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE Developed Asia Pacific ex Japan UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Developed Asia Pacific ex Japan UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Developed Asia Pacific ex Japan Index, a widely recognised benchmark of the large- and mid-capitalised companies of the developed markets of the Asia-Pacific region, excluding Japan.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, several Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned -5.84% for the six months.
- The biggest detractors were South Korea and Australia, which make up more than three-quarters of the index. Singapore and Hong Kong posted positive returns.
- Eight of the 11 industry sectors posted negative results. Telecommunications, basic materials and technology detracted most from performance. Financial stocks, which make up more than 30% of the index, performed the best.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE Developed Europe UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Developed Europe UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Developed Europe Index, a widely recognised benchmark of stock market performance of European developed countries that is composed of the stocks of large- and mid-capitalised companies in developed Europe.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, several Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 0.18% for the six months.
- The United Kingdom and Germany contributed the most to returns, followed by Spain and Italy. The biggest detractors were Denmark and the Netherlands.
- Among sectors, financials and industrials contributed the most. The biggest detractor was health care, followed by technology, energy and basic materials.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE Developed Europe ex UK UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Developed Europe ex UK UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Developed Europe ex UK Index, a widely recognised market capitalisation-weighted index of stock market performance of European developed countries, excluding the United Kingdom, that is composed of the stocks of large- and mid-capitalisation companies in that region.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, several Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned –1.50% for the six months.
- Among markets, Denmark and the Netherlands were the biggest detractors. German stocks contributed the most on the positive side, followed by Spain and Italy.
- By sector, health care detracted most, followed by technology, consumer discretionary and consumer staples. Financials and industrials led among sectors with positive returns.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE Developed World UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Developed World UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Developed Index, a widely recognised benchmark of large- and mid-capitalisation companies in global developed markets.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 5.75% for the six-month period.
- The United States, which represents about 70% of the index, added the most to the benchmark's performance. Among other markets with the larger weightings, Japan, Germany, the UK and Canada added to performance; France, Switzerland and Australia detracted.
- Eight of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive returns. Consumer discretionary, financial and technology stocks added the most to returns. Health care, basic materials and energy detracted.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE Emerging Markets UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Emerging Markets UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Emerging Index, a free-float market capitalisation-weighted index of large- and mid-capitalisation companies in multiple emerging markets in Europe, Asia, Africa, Central and South America and the Middle East.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark returned 3.80% for the six-month period.
- China, which makes up about 30% of the index, contributed the most to the benchmark's performance. Taiwan also added significantly to performance. India, the benchmark's second-largest market, was the biggest detractor.
- Six of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive returns. Technology, financials and consumer discretionary added the most to returns. Energy, basic materials and consumer staples detracted the most.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE Japan UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Japan Index, a widely recognised benchmark of large- and mid-capitalised companies in Japan.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, several Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and by the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 2.32% for the six-month period.
- Six of the benchmark's 11 industry sectors delivered positive results. Consumer discretionary stocks contributed most to returns, followed by financials and industrials. The biggest detractor was technology, followed by basic materials and utilities.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard FTSE North America UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard FTSE North America UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE North America Index, a market capitalisation-weighted index of large- and mid-cap companies in the United States and Canada.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period up 5.67%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index in US dollars. By region, US stocks outperformed, with the prospect of corporate tax cuts and deregulation under the next administration buoying market sentiment towards year-end.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 8.76% for the six-month period.
- Eight of the benchmark's 11 industry sectors produced positive returns. Technology, consumer discretionary and financials contributed most to returns. Health care was the biggest detractor.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Germany All Cap UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard Germany All Cap UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Germany All Cap Index, a free-float-adjusted market capitalisation-weighted index composed of large-, mid- and small-cap stocks of companies located in Germany, and is derived from the broader FTSE Global Equity Index Series.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 7.56% for the six-month period.
- Six of the benchmark's 11 industry sectors produced positive returns. Technology and financials, the two largest sectors in the index, contributed most to returns. Consumer discretionary was the biggest detractor.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard S&P 500 UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard S&P 500 UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the Standard & Poor's 500 Index, a widely recognised benchmark of US stock market performance that is composed of the stocks of large US companies.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global stocks finished the period up 5.67%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index in US dollars. By region, US stocks outperformed, with the prospect of corporate tax cuts and deregulation under the next administration buoying market sentiment towards year-end.
- In this environment, the ETF's benchmark index returned 8.22% for the six-month period.
- Eight of the index's 11 industry sectors posted positive results. Consumer discretionary stocks led the way, followed by technology and financial stocks, among others. Health care slightly detracted.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

¹ The return of the S&P 500 UCITS ETF is adjusted by 15% for the withholding tax on dividends paid by US securities. The return of the S&P 500 Index is adjusted by 30%.

² Since-inception returns: USD Accumulating, 14 May 2019.

Vanguard ESG EUR Corporate Bond UCITS ETF

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

Vanguard ESG EUR Corporate Bond UCITS ETF seeks to track the performance of the Bloomberg MSCI EUR Corporate Liquid Bond Screened Index, a EUR denominated universe of investment grade corporate fixed-rate bonds.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Global financial markets posted gains for the six months ended 31 December 2024, even as volatility picked up in the second half of the period.
- With inflation generally trending lower, a number of Western central banks turned more accommodative. The European Central Bank had begun to cut short-term interest rates just before the period under review. The Bank of England started doing the same in August, and the US Federal Reserve did so in September.
- Investor sentiment was dented at times by economic reports of slow or stalled progress on curbing inflation and the prospect of fewer US rate cuts than had been anticipated. The macroeconomic backdrop, however, remained supportive of growth, and the global economy continued to expand.
- Global bonds finished the period higher despite headwinds in October and December.
- The ETF's benchmark returned 4.16% for the six-month period.
- Among the largest markets in the index, Sweden, Italy and Germany outperformed. Among the laggards were France and the United Kingdom.
- By sector, bonds issued by financial institutions returned more than those issued by industrial companies and utilities.
- By credit quality, bonds on the bottom rung of the investment-grade ladder returned more than their higher-rated counterparts. And by maturity, longer-dated bonds generally returned more than shorter-dated ones.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at <https://global.vanguard.com>. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.
